Made in France, the supplements are vegan and contain more than 112 minerals and trace elements

Marine product house Thalion has launched a new range of nutritional supplements rich in marine algae to boost vitality from within.

To create the line, Thalion has blended a super algae concentrate containing more than 112 minerals and trace elements deemed to be essential for optimal body function and immunity.

The formula is designed to help balance and strengthen the skin from within while also nourishing the body with organic active superfood.

Thalion has unveiled three different types of supplement, including Super Énergie and Super Bien-Être both of which are ingestible vitamins, and the Super Équilibre ampoules which dissolve when mixed with water.

Super Énergie taps organic spirulina and chlorella to foster vitality and Super Bien-Être relies on marine magnesium to help relieve stress and fatigue.

Meanwhile, algae extract powers Super Équilibre to encourage slimming, drainage and detox.

Made in France, the supplements are vegan and all packaging is made from recyclable plastic and FSC cardboard.
